

“Crime Prevention that Kills”

Formerly one of the world’s most infamous jewel thieves, George Feder knows first-hand what works and what doesn’t when it comes to crime prevention. In George’s “Crime Prevention that Kills” presentation, he uses his real-life experience to show you how some crime prevention theories and products are dangerously flawed, and shows you what you can do to make sure you and your family stay safe.

This one hour presentation covers the following:

- The truth about certain mainstream crime prevention products that give a false sense of security.
- Low-cost crime prevention products and simple methods that work.
- A first-hand account of the types of deterrents that prevented George from breaking into homes.
- Statistics on home invasions in the United States.

Immediately following the presentation, George will conduct a no-holds-barred Q & A session. No question is off limits.
